II MaRIas Seminar

Moving Gender in International Relations

Call for papers

On November 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12, 2021, the II MaRIas Seminar: Moving Gender in International Relations will be held. The presentations will be completely online, through a digital platform.

Following the proposal of the first edition of this event, the II MaRIas Seminar: Moving Gender in International Relations, seeks to further promote gender studies as a theme of International Relations studies. Incorporating, this year, the tone of the movements. We will, therefore, talk about the theoretical Gender movements in academia, the gender movements in society, and the physical movements of people, goods, and knowledge that were interrupted, hindered or adapted during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Thus, we invite all students (undergraduates and postgraduates), professors, and researchers to take ownership of this space and take part in this debate, submitting their ongoing or completed research for consideration in the second edition of the MaRIas Seminar. Our objective is to promote the dissemination of research on the subject, as well as offer the author's comments and/or criticisms that help in the development of their work. In addition, the seminar intends to integrate scientists in the area, and other students and professors who are interested in knowing more about the topic, so we will accept applications for listeners later on.

Meanwhile, the application and proposal submission process will be carried out entirely online for those interested in submitting papers. Through an application form that can be accessed through the following link: <https://forms.gle/FLHLxvPi7HX43mtY7>

Finally, it is recommended that, at the time of registration, the rules of the submission of works are carefully read. Since only papers that comply with the rules indicated in this notice and that are submitted within the deadline will be analyzed.
